About Susan

More than flowers. It's personal.

FLORIST | WEDDING SPECIALIST

Congratulations on your forthcoming wedding—and thank you for considering Narcissus Wedding Flowers by Susan.

I'm Susan, the florist behind my multi-award-winning wedding flower studio in Cumbernauld, Central Scotland. With over 30 years of experience in floristry and a passion for weddings that shows no sign of fading, I specialise exclusively in bespoke wedding flowers for couples across Central Scotland.

My love of flowers began at just five years old, helping my aunt at the prestigious Gleneagles Hotel, where she was the resident florist while also running her own flower shop. Those early experiences sparked a lifelong love of flowers and floral design.

After moving to Glasgow, I spent nearly a decade managing one of the West End's top flower shops. During that time, I developed and expanded the wedding department and discovered that wedding floristry was where my heart really lay.

I launched my own studio in 2010 and have since had the privilege of working with more than 500 couples and at over 100 wedding venues across Scotland.

Why I love what I do

I love the whole journey—from that first conversation when you start sharing your ideas, to designing the flowers, and finally arriving on your wedding morning and seeing everything come together.

I believe your flowers should reflect you—your style, your personality and the atmosphere you want to create. That's why I don't work from set packages or one-size-fits-all designs.

Instead, I bring my experience, creativity and knowledge to every wedding, creating something that feels personal to you and perfectly at home in your venue.

I believe your wedding flowers should reflect you - your style, your personality and the atmosphere you wish to create.

No set packages. No one-size-fits - all. Just beautiful flowers, thoughtfully designed around you

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT TO SPEND?

Every wedding is beautifully unique—and so are the floral designs that bring it to life. Because of this, it's not always possible to provide an exact quote without first having a more detailed consultation.

That said, I completely understand the need for clarity and planning early on. To help you get a better idea of what's possible, I've put together a selection of real wedding examples that showcase different styles and budgets, along with a general pricing guide. This way, you can begin to visualise your dream florals and see what might work for your budget before we dive into the details together.

Every wedding is different, so the options in this guide are simply there to help you explore what might work for you and your wedding. Not every wedding has a bride, groom, bridesmaids or groomsmen, and your flowers can be tailored to suit the people and plans that matter most to you.

Elopements and Micro Weddings

· Small in size, big on beauty

· First things first—there are no rules saying elopements and micro weddings can't be a flower-filled extravaganza! That said, many couples choosing to elope opt for just a bridal bouquet and a few buttonholes to keep things simple and elegant.

· For a bridal bouquet and single buttonhole, you can expect to spend somewhere between £110 and £185, depending on style, flower choices, and season.

· Please note: Orders under £250 are available for collection only from our Cumbernauld studio.

How to make your flower budget Work Harder

As much as we'd all love to have a Taylor Swift-sized wedding budget, most of us have a figure we need to work within.

Whether that's £500 or £5,000, there are usually choices to be made about where to spend your floral budget.

My ethos is simple: to create the biggest possible impact from the flowers you invest in, while avoiding unnecessary waste.

I believe your flowers and your budget should work for you, not against you.

There are lots of ways to maximise the impact of your wedding flowers, whatever your budget.

CREATE IMPACT.

For smaller budgets, you might choose to invest in two or three statement floral pieces rather than spreading the same budget across ten or twelve smaller arrangements.

REPURPOSE

Choose flowers that can work twice during the day. For example, guest table flowers that can be first used to create a beautiful ceremony backdrop or another focal point.

PRIORITISE

Decide where your flowers will have the biggest impact — and make your budget work around what's most important to you.

BE OPEN ABOUT YOUR BUDGET

Share your realistic budget and wish list with your florist and let us help you explore the possibilities. You might be surprised at what we can achieve by making your flowers — and your budget — work harder.

Don't compromise on the flowers that matter most

The one area where I would never suggest compromising is your personal wedding flowers.

Your bouquet and/or buttonhole(s) feature in so many of your photographs, and these are the flowers you'll remember long after the day is over.

You don't want to look back at your wedding photos and wish you'd chosen something different.

If you need to make your budget stretch further, there are other places we can make adjustments.

Bridesmaids' bouquets could be smaller or simpler, for example, or you might choose to have a buttonhole for the groom only rather than for every member of the wedding party.

It's all about deciding where your flowers will have the biggest impact — and making your budget work around what's most important to you.

*Finally - No question is stupid.
We can't answer the questions you aren't asking!*
